(By Edward Payson Weston.)
 Mill City, Nev., via Humboldt, Nev., July 2.—After arriving at Rose Creek yesterday, thirty-one miles, without resting, and the thermometer registering 104 in the shade, I decided to take a rest until evening. The night came but it was still hot. I started again at 1 A. M. this morning, arriving at Mill City, fourteen miles, where I was compelled to seek shelter from the sun. The thermometer registering 114 in the shade. It is a physical impossibility to go on in this heat, and I will again wait until night before going further. It is now a certainty that I will not be able to make San Francisco within the 100 days. My health is good and I do not feel that I should take the chance that many others have taken on the desert to their sorrow.—New York Times.

Intelligence of Travelers.
 A gentleman engaged in the transportation service in various sections of the country for many years and for varied interests, hazards the opinion that in proportion to its population New England sends out more travelers or so-called tourists than does any other part of the country.
 This desire to visit remote regions take shape first in the development of shipping from Boston, Salem and even Maine to the far East, the whaling industry of New Bedford and other New England ports. In later days the roving spirit finds vent in journeys abroad and to places of typical interest in our own country. Thus, the "Personally Conducted" tourist business finds its most fertile field in New England.

It is because this condition is fully recognized that the Lehigh Valley Railroad has established a New England Passenger Agency at No. 39 Church street, New Haven, Conn., with Mr. N. W. Pringle as its representative. This gentleman will be pleased upon request, furnish complete information as to reduced round trip rates to many points of great interest including Seattle, San Francisco, Salt Lake, Colorado, St. Paul, the Great Lakes, Niagara Falls, etc.

We should advise you to see our eyesight specialist, a man who has made the refraction of the eye his life study and specialty, and who does nothing else but examine eyes for defective vision and anomalies of its muscles.

PARADE OF "WILD WEST" ON MONDAY STARTS AT 10 A.M.

MILLER BROTHERS' "101 RANCH," REAL WESTERN SHOW TO BE HERE MONDAY

Press of Other Cities Speak in Highest Terms of Performance--Will Show at West End Circus Grounds--100 Redskins in Parade.

With the 101 Ranch Wild West Show, which will visit this city for two performances on Monday, July 5, are the only Indian twins ever permitted to live, according to all government historical and current reports, and to the information that Miller Brothers can secure from many tribes of redmen. They are Joe and Sam Lone Bear, full-blooded Poncas. The death of their mother soon after their birth and the absence of their father on a hunting trip at the time was a fortunate combination of events in the life of one of them.

The ancient, well-authenticated customs of all Indians was to kill the mother and one offspring in the event of a double birth. The vigilance of the government authorities has of late years intimidated the Indians from ending the life of the woman, but there is no other record of two children being permitted to live. Widespread calamity, aboriginal traditions has it is sure to follow the advent of twins and only the immediate death of one will dispel it.

Joe and Sam Lone Bear saw the light on Christmas Day of last year and Dan Dix, a cold-nosed cowboy stumbled upon their log cabin on the wind-swept Oklahoma prairie a few hours later. The mother was breathing her last. Her final effort was an attempt to wrest one of the infants from the other arms of the expected visitor. As life left her body, the cowboy wrapped the squalling babies in a blanket, and rode with them to the Bar ranch house where he was employed. The father claimed them a week later, but the ranchmen of the neighborhood, knowing well the old Indian tradition, removed the twins to the government agency. The federal official upheld them in their action.

Zack T. Miller, of the 101 Ranch, learning of the episode, secured his appointment as legal guardian, and the babies were soon after given a permanent home on the famous arena. The father made several efforts to surreptitiously get possession of them, but was frustrated. He married again in February and the incident apparently became a forgotten memory.

Joe and Sam are seeing the country with the 101 Ranch Show, in charge of a devoted pale-face nurse, for Mr. Miller will trust them to no one of their race. He says he is going to educate them in the white man's way. Another barbarous custom of the Indians is the killing of a person, sick from natural causes, who is declared by the medicine man to be beyond hope. No Indian will reach the happy hunting ground of his forefathers, belief prevails, if he die a natural death. His end must be the result of violence to insure an eternal happy hereafter. Thus the red-man killed in battle, thrown from horse, ground by a buffalo or hurt in the chase, is convinced of his everlasting peace. The recognized practice is to smother the victim of natural diseases just before the normal end. There are instances where Indians have been interrupted by the authorities as they were preparing to smother a supposedly dying man, and he has recovered under the white physician's treatment.

The parade will start at 10 o'clock Monday morning, and will move down State street to Main, up Main to Fairfield avenue, and over Fairfield avenue to the grounds.

BARRETT IN LEAD FOR LOVING CUP

Dick Barrett, amateur champion roller skater of New England, last evening at the Sea Breeze rink in Savin Rock, skated away from the field of seventeen rollers from this city, New Haven, Waterbury and Meriden. The race went for two miles, Barrett taking the lead after the first mile. He finished ahead of the seventeen by one-half lap. This was the first of a series of five races for three loving cups which are to be offered to the winners. That the first will come to this city there is no doubt, as Dick made no effort last evening to win out. His time for the two miles was 10 sec., which is the fastest time ever made at the Sea Breeze rink. The amateur race was a preliminary to a three mile relay between Walter Hayes and Harry Burke of this city, and Chaffield and Dunn of Waterbury, which the local boys won by one-quarter of a lap. This was the second of a series of three races, the former being won by the Waterbury boys.
